Mr. and Mrs. J. V. McAlister and two children, of Monroe City, Mo., arrived in Farmington the first of the week for a visit with Mr. McAlister's sister, Mrs. B. T. Gentges. They drove through in their car.

Dr. J. L. Eaton, superintendent of State Hospital No. 4, has been quite seriously ill with the grip for the past two weeks. His many friends and well wishers, however, will be pleased to know that he is now improving.

Mack Matkins and Giles Hunt left Tuesday for Chicago, where they will enter on special business training.

For the past six months both these young men have been in the landscape engineering department of the Missouri Pacific railway.

Owing to sickness in The Times family this week, the "burning of midnight oil" has been necessary to get this paper out on time this week, though considerable important news, including county correspondence, is required to be omitted.

Rev. O. H. Duggins, Presiding Elder for this District, left Tuesday for Poplar Bluff to attend annual Conference. He has been quite successful in the management of the work in this District, and will doubtless be returned for another year.

The 1920 tax books have been delivered to Collector Brewer, who is now ready to "take the money" from all tax-payers. While the rush has not yet started in that office, a number of tax-payers are now making daily visits to the Collector's office.

Rev. E. H. Orear, pastor of the M. E. Church, South, left Tuesday to attend annual Conference at Poplar Bluff. His entire congregation are hopeful and prayerful that he will be returned to this charge for the ensuing year, where he has done splendid work.

Assessor F. M. Horton was a pleasant caller at The Times office Monday. He has been making an active canvass of St. Francois county for the past several weeks for re-election, and reports the prospects good for another Democratic victory in this county.

Col. Henry C. Bell, editor of the Post-Independent and a member of the Board of Managers of State Hospital No. 4, was in Farmington Saturday on political business. He reports increasing Democratic activity in all the counties he has recently visited, and indications bright for a splendid Democratic victory in Missouri.

Henry Burnette, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Burnette, gave a party to twenty-five of his friends Tuesday, to celebrate his birthday. Different games were played, and many presents were given. The birthday cake was a large one, and the tables were decorated in keeping with the occasion. Toy swords to the boys and cup dolls to the girls were given as souvenirs.

Mrs. Anna McCarver, who has been visiting in Leadwood, returned home Monday.

Remember, on Special Sales Day we give you the best overall on earth for $2.45. After that day it will be regularly priced at $3.00—Farmington Merc. Co.

Bert Wines and son, Charles, have purchased and taken charge of the auto repair shops of Tom Ayers in this city. Both will give their expert attention to the business, and they already have three machinists employed, and appearances are that they are in the best possible condition to guarantee all their work, which they do.

Wm. Lee, who recently purchased and moved into the home on the corner of College and "A" streets, is having the place further improved by the addition of large porches around the south and east fronts of the building, which adds greatly to the appearance and comfort of the property.

M. L. Doughty, of Chicago, who with Mrs. Doughty is visiting relatives and many old friends in Farmington and community, called at The Times office Tuesday and again had his name enrolled on our subscription list.

While he is pleasantly located, and thoroughly enjoying life in his present home, and has no intention of changing his residence, nevertheless he enjoys meeting with his friends of former days, and expects to continue to make frequent visits here for some time to come. They will leave for their home next week.

It cannot be too often repeated that the Republican Congress, of which Senator Harding was a member, and which was dominated by the Senate oligarchy, that forced his nomination did nothing to lighten the load of taxes made necessary by the war. It did nothing even to relieve the people of the most vexatious form of these taxes: taxes that are not needed and in the collection of which the people, all the people, men, women and children, are unnecessarily annoyed and harassed. We refer particularly to the imposts of soda fountain drinks, moving picture tickets, etc. These taxes are not needed at Washington, and they represent only an abominable annoyance to everybody. As further evidence of the indifference of the present Republican leadership toward this vitally important matter the Chicago platform is witness. No promise in that platform document that an earnest attempt will be made by the next Congress should the Republicans win, to rid the existing tax system of either its unnecessary burdens or its fretful annoyances.—St. Louis Mirror.

KEEP YOUR BATTERY CLEAN

"The man who keeps his battery up to the mark by recharging and putting in water when needed deserves considerable credit," says C. M. Thomson, Willard Service Station dealer, "but he hasn't the limit by any means."

"Conscientious battery care ought also to include attention to the outside of the battery—the case terminals, connectors, and so on."

"When too much water is put in, the solution is sure to splash out a little at a time, and will eat the wood of the battery case. Never put any more water than is necessary to bring the level of the electrolyte to 3-8 of an inch above the top of the insulators. If any solution is accidentally spilled on the battery box, it should be removed with a piece of waste soaked in strong ammonia."

"Terminals should always be kept clean and tight. For protection against solution they should be coated with vasoline."

FOR A DEMOCRATIC SENATE

Senator Harding's party had free and absolute control of the last Congress. This means that the Republican candidate's party could have enacted into law a tax system that would have relieved the American people of a considerable portion of the heavy burden of war imposts, but its time was frittered away in a bootless effort to keep America from entering into an agreement with all the other great nations of the earth to minimize a recurrence of the unthinkable horrors of war such as blackened the course of the world conflict under which the human race is now staggering blindly to readjust itself to the conditions spawned by the dragon unleashed by the Kaiser and autocracy.

and for everything the farmer needs, he is questioning the advisability of laying out all his ready money for improvements. He knows that prices are going to recede. He can tell that because the price of sugar has already begun to sag, and that the prices of cotton goods have begun to shrink. He can also tell it because the prices of hogs and cattle is not what it was a year ago.

Many wise farmers figure that the best thing they can do is to hold on to their money, or put it in liquid shape. The farmer reads the papers more now than he used to, and he knows that Liberty Bonds at the present market price are just about as good a place as he can find to put his money.

He can buy at a discount now, help to stiffen up the market, and when prices recede if he wants to he can sell his bonds at a higher price than he paid and get more than twice the value for his money if he spent it now on the high priced commodities.

Or he knows he can invest in Treasury Savings Certificates, which are Uncle Sam's ten-day note. He can get the money, plus interest, on ten days' notice, and be sure that his money is in reach at all times, and get back more than he invested.

SOME HUNTER THIS

Kentuckian Crept So Stealthily Through Forest That Sleeping Deer Was Not Awakened When Hunter Felt of Him.

That hunter who in the early days emigrated from Kentucky and located in Warren County, Mo., was some expert when it came to stalking deer.

"Of course, I don't recall it myself," says Walter Lavender, cashier of the Exchange Bank at Jonesburg, "but my grandfather used to tell about this mighty hunter."

In the fall, when the ground was covered with dried leaves, which in the quiet forests would rustle loudly from the slightest touch, this old Kentuckian would creep over the leaves, and find his deer asleep in a thick cover, and reach out his hand and give the sleeping deer the once over.

If the deer was fat, the hunter would frighten the animal and shoot him when he was safely in flight. If the deer was poor he was left sleeping in peace.

Thrift and caution were thus combined, and lavender, if people were only as cautious now in making investments there would be many better off. He believes one to feel of his investment offered. Liberty Bonds at the present market price should be mighty tempting to most any investor nowadays. The interest is dead sure, and when bought now, it is a much greater than any one ever dreamed of. Securities, the best on earth, never bring.

OUTLOOK ON THE FA

Crops Better Than the Most sanguine Hoped for and Prices for Goods He Wants Are Receding.

Now that the late rains have made the Missouri corn crop at least one hundred per cent better than appeared possible a month ago, and the pastures are renewed, and the general outlook greatly improved, farmers and other citizens are confronted with a problem that did not worry them a while back.

Then it appeared there would be no surplus and just where to put their money was the rest of their worries. But now that crop prospects are all to the good, and it looks as though a real balance would be the result all along the line, the question of investment crops up every day.

With the high prices that prevail for wire fencing, for farm machinery, and for everything the farmer needs, he is questioning the advisability of laying out all his ready money for improvements. He knows that prices are going to recede. He can tell that because the price of sugar has already begun to sag, and that the prices of cotton goods have begun to shrink. He can also tell it because the prices of hogs and cattle is not what it was a year ago.

Many wise farmers figure that the best thing they can do is to hold on to their money, or put it in liquid shape. The farmer reads the papers more now than he used to, and he knows that Liberty Bonds at the present market price are just about as good a place as he can find to put his money.

He can buy at a discount now, help to stiffen up the market, and when prices recede if he wants to he can sell his bonds at a higher price than he paid and get more than twice the value for his money if he spent it now on the high priced commodities.

Or he knows he can invest in Treasury Savings Certificates, which are Uncle Sam's ten-day note. He can get the money, plus interest, on ten days' notice, and be sure that his money is in reach at all times, and get back more than he invested.
